

NO FUSS OR FRILLS FOR SMALL GIRL'S FROCK

BY BETTY BROWN

The small person must be dressed simply—Fashion insists on that. No lacey fluffs for little sister even on party dresses, but you may go just as far as you like with hand embroidery. This is the edict sent forth by Mme. Becker, the Paquin of the children's fashion world. A sketch I made in her studio the other day proves how much elaboration may be put upon a "simple little frock."

With hand-embroidered pink volles and bands of filet lace, Mme. Becker has made a quaint little Empire frock for "dress up" wear, but the cunningest thing about it is the hand embroidery which trims it.
